

February 1st, 2012

Re: InterQual Construction Referral

To Whom It May Concern:

As the owner and developer of real estate across the east coast, it is my pleasure to recommend the work, quality, craftsmanship, integrity and professionalism by InterQual Construction headed by Oleksandr Serga and Tim McCarthy.

Located in New York City, the ability to rely on contractors is vital to the success of our projects. InterQual has proven to be both easy to communicate with and the ability to deliver projects on-time, with zero to few change orders and with as little headaches as possible in the construction process. They have respected not only the building but the surrounding tenants and the rules that we set forth to minimize disruptions to the ongoing business around them in our building.

It has been a pleasure working with InterQual, LLC and all their efforts. Above all, my job was made easier knowing that I could rest assured that the projects were in good hands. This allowed me to devote my time to more important issues and eliminated my need to travel. Not only did they deliver on their competitive price, but they did work which not only myself, but the ultimate tenants and users of the space, could be proud of. They went above and beyond at each step and have earned our business for all our future construction projects.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Regards,

Scott Aden
Vice President
Shermen Group, LLC